It's all over but the memory of it will linger in the breasts of our people for many a long day. General Weaver has come and gone but his words and warnings will be heeded when the time comes for action. The speaker of the evening was received with thunders of applause. He launched at once into his subject and for two hours held his audience with riveted attention. The decorations at Scheffin Hall were furnished by citizens and their attractive arrangement was due to the artistic skill of Pete Butte.

Mrs. Henry Cook has just finished a magnificent gem in the shape of an oil painting, which is attracting much attention at Yapple's. It is a credit to the artist and will be a surprise to many citizens who did not realize that talent of such high order existed in our midst.

DOINGS IN THE STATE LEGISLATURE

PHOENIX, Jan. 23—Enactment of the prohibition amendments into laws, reform of the election laws and a drastic anti-cigarette law are the objects of a number of bills introduced in the house this morning.

The senate adjourned early owing to the serious illness of President Claridge's daughter.

Three bills aimed at reformation of the election laws and providing machinery for the canvass of returns and issuance of certificates of election by the secretary of state, were introduced in the house by Bate.

A bill enacting into law the two prohibition amendments was introduced by Mrs. O'Neill of Maricopa.

Coffee and Migraph of Greenlee introduced an anti-cigarette bill, prohibiting the giving or sale of cigars or cigarettes to minors.

A bill providing for the sale of farm products by producers without payment of a license tax was introduced by Houser of Gila.

Baxter introduced a bill providing for foreclosure of attachments of real estate in justice courts, and Flake introduced a bill providing for the retirement of teachers after twenty years' service, this being the same measure as Rutherford's in the senate, which was killed last week.

Both houses adjourned to 10 o'clock tomorrow.

Saturday's Proceedings

With a few members of the house present as visitors the senate met Saturday morning. A few bills were introduced and adopted a memorial to congress seeking to have the government build and maintain roads through the several Indian reservations.

Senator Kinney of Gila introduced a bill providing for the payment of $5335 into the state law library for the qualifications of electors and Roberts of Cochise a bill providing for the extermination of prairie dogs.

Colter's bill seeks to permit Mexicans over 50 years of age who have lived in the United States five years to vote without knowing how to read the federal constitution. This covers a point never made clear under the terms by which the United States took over certain parts of Mexico in 1848.

The memorial to congress about the reservations was introduced by Senator Colter. It sets forth that in Arizona there are some 73,000,000 acres of land and that about one-third of it is reserved by the United States and over which the state of Arizona has no supervision. Twenty millions of the acres, the memorial sets forth, are held as Indian reservations. These reservations prevent systematic development of the opened parts of Arizona and there are no laws that adequately make it possible to build and maintain roads. The memorial asks that proper transportation facilities be authorized by congress. The memorial carried unanimously and was sent to the house.

ARRESTED FOR EAVES-DROPPING BY DICTOGRAPH

PHOENIX, Jan. 23—A. L. Behringer, said to be an operative in the employ of an El Paso detective agency, but who registered from Denver, was arrested late yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Adams, following the discovery of wires of a dictograph apparatus leading to his room from that of Frank C. Armstrong of New York, president of the Ray Hercules Copper company. A sensational effort to escape was nipped in the bud when Behringer, realizing that his apparatus had been discovered, hurriedly picked up two suit cases containing the recording apparatus and his clothing, made his way from his room to the hotel screen porch, entered the room adjoining that he was occupying, and while officers and others were entering his room from the hall, attempted to pass from the building. He was apprehended and kept under surveillance until a complaint could be sworn to by President Armstrong and a warrant issued. Late last evening he was a prisoner at the county jail, held in default of the $1500 bail demanded by Justice of the Peace F. De Souza.
